GRAND OPERA HOUSE

Theatre goers who were fortunate enough to have witnessed "Sandy Bottom" last season will find renewed enjoyment when the play is presented at the Grand Opera House on next Saturday, Oct. 28, matines and night, while for many who have not seen it before its presentation will serve as a delightful introduc-

It is a Southern play, original and unique and its welcome varia-tion from the regulation melodrams of the day brings with it relief. The story is simple and unpretentious, yet has several fine fidelities under it all. It has been described as one of the most original, diverting and unhackneved plays of Southern life that the sage has given up and is one of the few where the sympathy and interest of the auditor continue without abatement from the rise to fall of the last curtain, and the satisfactory disposal of the author's characters. The company presenting it this season is said to be an exellent one. Prices, matinee 10 and 20 cents; night 10, 20, 30 and 50.

Alderman Smith Well Again. Alderman J. F. Smith, of Indianapolis, Ind., contracted a severe old which grew rapidly worse until his physicians said he had all the symptoms of hasty consumption. The physician's prescriptions and everal proprietary preparations failed to help him. A friend recom-mended Foley's Honey and Tar, and in a few days he began to improve and the second bottle cured him rapietely. He says it is the best remedy for coughs, colds and lung trouble he has ever known. Accept no substitutes. Sold by Stone & Mercer, Sturm & Wilson and F H.

You can apply ManZan inside right where the pain is. It is put up in collapsible tubes with nozzle attachments for introducing it. ManZan stops pain instantly and cures all kinds of blind, bleeding, itching and protruding piles. Sold by Stone & Mercer.

Adventures of the Explorers Moor-croft and Hearney.

In the year 1812 Thet was entered by two explorers, Moorcroft and Hear-sey, the first Englishmen to penetrate the forbidden lend. Hearney describes one of their experiences at Daba: "After breakfast this cay (July 4) Umar Singh sent word to into come and pay our respects to the wext's son in a council assembled with the lama and council assembled with the lama and the son of the dela. We proceeded about 0 o'clock, attended by the pundle and three or four other servants carrying the presents for three people. The presents condition of three people. The presents condition of three people. The presents condition of three people of a perfect service of the presents of the present of the presents of the present and spice, all arranged on a brans plate. We first contend a gate over against which was fissioned a very large and him bone and some thing of the Newfoundard briefed. We then had to stoop to energian theredox then had to sto be to enter an other dor-fifthy enough, stench abundanble. We then proceeded up in few steps of earl-and stones, all braken. We turned in the right and entired a small ante-chamber, to the right of which was the women's room.
"A greasy, filthy purelah was then lifted up, and we entered the parlor Here we found a clean mirzal, or poor woolen carriet, spread for us in the center of the room. In front was a vacant seat, opposite to which on presents were placed. On the right sat the lama on a cushion; before him was placed a kind of tea pay (three legged table), on which were two wooden var-nished plates, painted and grift. There was also a fire pan. The old gentleman appeared about seventy years old, had a shrewd countenance, said very little and eyed us all the time. He was dressed in a coarse woolen red gar ment, the manufacture of the country, greasy and dirty in the extreme. This was the bishop of this see.

"He had another priest sitting to his right, more black, more filthy and more ngly than himself. Opposite to me sal the son of the deba, a dark, but sensible, though rather heavy looking, per son, aged about twenty-nine or thirty He had a paper in his hand at our en-trance, as if in the act of writing. He was seated on a leather cushion stuffed with wool, over which was a carpet before him was a sort of small table on which were two of the wooder plates before mentioned, a china cup an inkstand, a wooden pen and a knife. To his right lay a long silver pipe. He was dressed in a red, blue, green and yellow striped woolen gown.

Very surpicions were the old priest and hi fellows, though a letter from a neighboring seat of government explained to them that Moorcroft and Hearsey really were harmless pligrims and not the dreaded Firingis and re quested that they might be permitted to proceed. On the next day, however matters were again somewhat complicated by the discovery that Hearse wore half boots of the English pattern When the natives discovered this the thought that something was surel wrong. Moorcroft, in his narrative told of this incident with evident reish, he himself having taken the pre caution of having turned up toes adde to his own shoes.

Wealth of the Ancient Romans Some of the Romans seem to have een very "solld," while others wer fast to a degree not known nowadays When Caesar was killed on the ides of March, Antony owed $1,000, 00, which he paid before the kalends of April on of the public money and squandered according to Adams, $28,000.000. Cae sar himself, before he set out for Spain was in debt to the extent of $10,000. 000. Lentulus possessed $16,145,830 Claudius, a freedman, saved $12,500, 000. Augustus obtained from the ter tamentary disposition of his friends-some people will leave their fortune to their sovereigns—no less than $161, 458,330. Tiberius left at his death the enormous sum of $108,964,380, which Caligula is said to have squandered in a single year.
